John S. Sayward.—Editor.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 26, 1850.

☞ A correspondent of the Belfast Signal calls the attention of ship-builders, in Maine, to take measures to maintain the protection afforded to the ship-building interest, and which has been in existence since the first establishment of the Union.

A scheme has just been started in New York, to induce our Government to reciprocate the British Navigation Laws, so as to admit British built vessels to the same privileges of Registry as those built in the United States; and in a letter from a New York firm (Roberts, Brothers) to Mr. Bulwer, the British Minister at Washington, advocating the measure, they submit to him "the fact that British North American built ships might, at the present time, be advantageously sold here, provided they could legally be transferred to citizens of the United States."

One of the great interests of our State is ship building. It employs a large amount of material and labor. It is a business that has increased until Maine is the largest ship-building State in the Union. It behooves her people to be watchful of this interest in order to secure it from being crushed by foreign competition.

THE EARTH AND MAN; Lecture on Comparative Physical Geography. By Arnold Guyot.—C. C. Felton. Boston: Gould, Kendall & Lincoln, 1848. pp. 310.

The earth is our dwelling place. It was designed and fashioned by the hand of the Almighty Architect of the universe for the happy residence of intelligent man. All things around him are constructed and arranged for his pleasure and convenience. Abundance in numberless forms is scattered in profusion around him; of climate, productions and scenery, there is variety and diversity.

The vast oceans spread out like mantles over the face of the globe—they are the highways of commerce, the home of the islands, the habitation of the fishes in their numerous varieties. The vapors arising from the surface of this watery world, borne inland by the winds, fertilizes the continents, and nourishes and supports the vegetable kingdom, and thus produces nutriment for the animal world.

The vast mountain chains which traverse the continent in various directions, give a pleasing variety of climate, scenery and productions even in the same latitude. In the mountains and highlands are the sources of rivers; obedient to the law of gravitation they flow thence to the ocean, irrigating the plains through which they pass, opening channels for internal commerce, being to the continents what the veins and arteries are to the human body.

The continents with their different races of men and animals and plants, have each their peculiarities of "configuration and relief." The differences having their causes in nature, operate in a wonderful manner upon the vegetable and animal kingdoms. Hence the diversity and variety of the races of men. The locality and structure of our continent give it a vegetative character, while physical influences cause animal life to predominate in another.

To the consideration of such topics are the lectures of Prof. Guyot confined. The origin in physical science, render his lectures as attractive and interesting to the general reader as they are necessary and useful to the man of science. The lectures composing this volume were delivered in the winter of 1849. They were pronounced in the French language but were translated by Prof. Felton, of Harvard University for the Boston Traveller. They are now collected in one volume, and are presented to the public in a substantial form. This book should be read by all who are desirous of obtaining a more thorough knowledge of our globe.

The book may be found at Mr. Dunn's in the Gothic Block.

Portland and Montreal Railroad.

We learn from the Advertiser, that the receipts from passengers for December, 1849, were $6,075 92. The freight receipts are not yet fully made out.

The following table exhibits the amount of receipts from passengers and freight respectively for each month in the year, excepting the freight receipts for December:

	Passengers.	Freight.
January,	$8,437 11	$1,931 98
February,	3,469 89	2,015 01
March,	5,238 37	4,138 94
April,	4,274 11	4,138 94
May,	3,95[illegible]	3,093 [illegible]
June,	4,93[illegible]	5,183 [illegible]
July,	6,7[illegible] 18	2,021 [illegible]
August,	[illegible]	2,711 [illegible]

October,	[illegible]	4,696 86
November,	8,657 [illegible]	4,848 22
December,	6,075 92
Total,	$[illegible],893 24	$37,269 97

Making $104,163 21, as the total receipts of the road for the year 1849, exclusive of the freight receipts for December.

☞ The resolutions of the Rail Road Meeting request us to say that we in error in transcribing the names of Charles Lowell, Esq., of Ellsworth, Israel Washburn, Esq., of Orono, and Hosea Rich, Esq., of Dixmont, were omitted in the report published in our Daily of the 25th.

The resolutions of the gentlemen named, were highly interesting and important, and it is to be regretted that any mistake should have been made in announcing their names, but the whole will be made right in the next Courier.

At a late meeting of the Horticultural Society of London, a pear was read which weighed at at the last Guernsey Fruit Show, a Chaumontel Pear, of perfect shape, and of the weight of two pounds and four and a half ounces was exhibited. It grew on a prime stalk, and no artificial means were employed to increase the weight of the fruits, of which there was a fair crop on the tree.

☞ The Skowhegan Press states that at the Railroad meeting at Canaan last week, it was voted to raise $50 in each of the towns of Bloomfield and Skowhegan, to aid in defraying the expense of the proposed survey of the route to Bangor.

An oil dealer sold some winter oil that was warranted to stand the severest cold. Last Tuesday it froze stiff. The purchaser went to the vender with loud complaints. 'I told you it would stand the coldest weather,' said he. 'I didn't tell you it would run. You see that it stands perfectly still and you can't make it budge.'

A LONG PEN-HOLDER.—On Saturday afternoon an operator in the Eastern Telegraph office in New York city, succeeded in writing direct to Halifax, N. S., a distance of nearly one thousand miles of continuous wire. This is the greatest distance that any telegraph has yet worked legibly.

PROF. MANDEVILLE.—We learn that Prof. Mandville has arrived in the city, after being detained for several days by the storms, and will meet the Teachers and others who propose joining the reading class, at Mr. Littlefield's school room this morning, at half past eight o'clock, to make arrangements.

☞ It will be seen on refering to our advertising columns that Mr. Adams, for years chief clerk of the Penobscot Exchange in this city, has associated himself with Mr. Joshua Barrell, as lessees of the Elm House in Portland, and will make that one of the most popular hotels in the State.

ANNIVERSARY EXERCISES.—The "Young Men's Bible Society" of this city, hold their annual meeting to-morrow evening, at the First Parish Church, at 7 o'clock. The report of the Secretary, Asa Walker, Esq., and addresses from several gentlemen is expected.

☞ In a portion of our yesterday's paper, it was stated that the receipts of the Androscoggin & Kennebec Railroad, for the month of December, were $14,000, instead of $7,000, according to the fact.

☞ Mr. Rowe, one of the former publishers of the Belfast Journal is keeping a public house at Sacramento City, and is said to be making $700 per month. He left for California about one year since.

We understand that Rev. S. L. Caldwell will commence a series of Sabbath evening discourses at the First Baptist Church, commencing to-morrow evening.

MUCH COMPLAINT is made in relation to the enormous postage charged on letters to and from California; in fact, Congress should do something immediately to diminish this great evil.

The next quarterly session of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance, commences at Skowhegan on Wednesday next.

☞ The great question now is, what constitutes a reasonable doubt?

☞ We received this morning three back mails from Portland.

The Grave in the Garden—An Incident near Kandahar.

Returning from a tour, during the past summer, to an unfrequented portion of our State, we arrived at a small stream, where the bridge having been destroyed by a recent fire, we found some difficulty in crossing with our carriage and ascending the opposite bank. While thus detained, the ladies, lured by the beauty of the scenery which lay before them, resolved to proceed on foot, until they should reach an elevation of ground which we saw not far distant, and which we knew would afford us one of the finest views of Katahdin, some 20, or 25 miles to the westward, towering among the clouds in all its solitary grandeur. In truth, it seems to hold dominion there, for those clouds come hovering around it, as if summoned there; where they are drawn down over its rugged peaks into the deep dark basin, till they become the sport of the eddying current and at length roll out from the open side of the mountain again.

This we watched their playful gambols for some time, when, as our carriage had not yet arrived, we again set forward with the view of resting a small, but neat and comfortable log house already in sight, where we might wait until the rest of our party came up. This we were the more anxious to do, as a week previously we had, after riding many miles without passing a single habitation, called here to rest and refresh ourselves; and had become much interested in the isolated family residing there, of whose history we thought this a favorable opportunity to learn somewhat.

Living thus in this secluded spot, so completely shut out from the privileges of society, their intelligence and refinement evinced, bore evidence that they had seen, to a careless observer might say—better days. That whatever might have been their former history, I could not in their light, contrast it with their present circumstances without, witnessed the peace and plenty that reigned around, the order and neatness that pervaded the household, and most of all, the artless simplicity, the happy contentment in each other's love, which presented a picture almost primitive innocence and purity of heart. These children are not ignorant, though their few days have never crossed the threshold of a school house, for a mother's watchful care has guided them in the path of learning, and in this she had been assisted by the service of a tutor, who had, during a small portion of each year, been employed in their family; for not only are they removed six or eight miles from any settlement, but are one of three families only, who have fixed their dwellings upon that road, which by the way, is not properly a carriage road, but is used only for lumbering purposes, except that it is now and then traversed by a pilgrim to Katahdin.

The rest of our party having now joined us, we yielded to the cordial invitation to remain and partake once more of their kind hospitality. During the preparations we wandered out over the ample garden, the thrifty condition of which fully verified the wonderful accounts of the merits of Aroostook soil. But of the various objects we saw on the premises, nothing so much excited our interest as one little lonely grave, which told that the destroying angel had sought out that peaceful home and borne some bud of promise from its happy fireside. I should not say that it was a lonely grave for it bore the marks of having been often visited, and the scarcely withered flowers which lay scattered there indicated that it was the object of many a tender care; and the spot where centered many a thought of affection. As we walked slowly towards the house, musing upon what we had seen, we were met by a little boy apparently four or five years old with some ripe fruit which he distributed among us; while he placed some in my hand without uttering a word. I discovered singular though sweet expression of his face, as he turned his dark and thoughtful eye up to me. It was lit up by no joyous smile, but a tear glistened there, telling that some thought of sadness had clouded his young heart.

On seeking an explanation from the mother, she related to us the circumstances of the sudden removal from their little circle, of a bright and lovely boy—the fond play-mate of our little George. He was during the preceding winter, suddenly attacked by a severe and distressing illness. After witnessing but a few hours' progress of the disease, the unwelcome thought of danger crossed their minds, which soon gave place to the sad conviction that he whose innocent prattle had beguiled many a lonely hour, and whose merry shout and joyous laugh had shed sunlight upon their winter hearth, must be yielded back to adorn the courts of Him who had lent them his brief existence. A few hours more, and the tendrils that bound his spirit to earth had, one after another, been loosed, and he had now become the society of angels; but the highest the noblest and most endearing qualities of his soul had evidently lingered third, after his body had deceased to be racked, with pain, to wreath a smile for his pale lips, and enstamp a lovely impress upon his fair face.

Upon no one of this stricken family does the bereavement seem to fall more heavily, than upon George, his little play-mate. Together they had tilled their mimic garden, they owned each plant and tree in company, and shared the fruit and flowers together. But the spring has returned again, and he goes sadly to his little plat of ground, and with a lonely sigh resumes his labors there for a while, then goes and sits him down upon the grave of his departed brother, and watches thence the 'coming buds and flowers.' As they come to maturity he culls the fairest half, and goes mournfully and deposits them upon that loved spot of earth as an offering to the memory of him who sleeps there. This he does entirely at the suggestion of his own sensitive mind, and when questioned with regard to his motives, his only answer is, 'half of the flowers are his.' And he never plucks a blossom for his own gratification unless one equally beautiful can be found upon the same plant, to be reserved for his brother.—Next their young cherry tree yields its accustomed fruit, and what shall he do with that?—His little brother he says, will not wish to share that with him; so he will not taste a single cherry himself, nor will he consent that his brothers and sisters shall do so.

At length on learning that some strangers who had passed there, were expected to return in a few days, he resolved to offer them to us, for his sensitive heart loathed the thought of feasting his appetite upon anything rendered sacred by its hallowed association with the memory of one so dear; but not so with his flowers, for the contemplation of their beauty awakened a higher order of pleasure—a pleasure that he fancied was shared by the pure spirit of his sainted brother.

Being now ready to proceed on our journey, we were requested to sing, and with our minds impressed with the incidents just related, we intuitively united in singing the appropriate words of 'The dying boy.' We had sung but few of those touching lines, when turning my eye upon little George whom I did not suppose old enough to appreciate their meaning, I discovered a tear stealing silently down his rosy cheek, and need I add that a tear mingled with his, in spite of myself, as I stooped to impress upon that cheek a parting kiss. L.

the Supreme Court, against the constitutionality of separate Schools for colored children, thus alludes to the prejudice of color.

"It is well known that this prejudice is peculiar to our country. You have not forgotten that two youths of African blood gained the highest honors in the college at Paris, in the year 1838, and dined on the same day with the king of France, the descendent of St. Louis, at the palace of the Tuilleries. And let me add, if I may refer to my own experience, that in Paris, I have sat for weeks, at the School of Law, on the same benches with colored persons, listening, like myself, to the learned lectures of Degerando and of Rossi.—the last is the eminent minister who has unhappily fallen beneath the dagger of a Roman assassin; nor do I remember observing, in the throng of sensitive young men by whom they were surrounded, any feeling towards them except companionship and respect.

In Italy, at the convent of Pallazuola, on the shores of the Alban lake, and on the site of the ancient Alba Longa, I have seen, for several days, a native of Abyssinia, one recently conducted from his torrid home, and ignorant of the language that was spoken about him, yet mingling with the Franciscan friars, whose guest and scholar he was, in delightful and affectionate familiarity. In these examples may be discerned the Christian spirit.

And, finally, it is this spirit that I invoke.—Where this prevails, there is neither Jew nor Gentile, Greek nor barbarian, bond nor free; but all are alike. It is from this that we derive new and solemn assurances of the equality of mankind as an ordinance of God. The bodies of men may be unequal in beauty or strength—these mortal cloaks of flesh may differ, as do these worldly garments—these intellectual faculties may vary, as do the opportunities of action and advantages of position; but amidst all unessential differences there is an essential agreement and equality. Dives and Lazarus were equal in the sight of God. They must be equal in the sight of all just institutions.

But this is not all. The vaunted superiority of the white race imposes upon it corresponding duties. The faculties with which they are endowed, and the advantages which they possess, are to be exercised for the good all. If the colored people are ignorant, degraded and unhappy, then should they be the especial objects of your care. From the abundance of your possessions you must seek to remedy their lot. And this court, which is apparent to all the unfortunate children of the Commonwealth, will show itself most truly parental when it reaches down, and, with the strong arm of the law, elevates, encourages, and protects its colored fellow citizens."

Melancholy Occurence.

GREAT FALLS, N. H., Jan 21st.

The body of Mr. Denholm was found yesterday in a grove on the northerly side of Prospect Hill. It appears that he was on his way from Quebec to Boston to take the last steamer for Europe, and got out of the cars at the Somersworth station, and came to this place where he stopped over night at the Great Falls Hotel. The next day, a short time before the starting of the second train for Boston, he paid his bill at the Saw and Mill, but instead of taking the cars wandered about the village, went over into Berwick, and subsequently returned to the New Hampshire side, and finally crept and dragged himself along, as the track in the snow indicated, until he finally perished by the cold. The Selectmen ordered an inquest before Coroner Brisbridge, who summoned a jury consisting of I. G. Jordan, C. E. Bartlett, and T. B. Parks, Esqs., who returned a verdict in accordance with the above statement. Mr. Denholm had been missing nearly two weeks. His father-in-law who arrived in town a few days since, offered a reward of $100 for the recovery of his body.—[Boston Journal.

Breadstuffs dull and slightly declined.

Best brands Philadelphia and Baltimore flour 25s to 25s 6d; Western Canal 23s.

The money market continues to increase in buoyancy, the bullion in the banks has slightly declined and consols still going up.

American stocks continue firm and in fair request.

ENGLAND.

Parliament meets for dispatch of business on 1st February when it is expected that some important change in the military system will be laid before the Legislature.

President Taylor's message which reached England by the Hibernia has been extensively published and largely commented upon by the English press. The general impression of public sentiment is very favorable.

FRANCE.

The assembly has been occupied during the past week in debating upon the policy of sending out more troops to the river Plate. It has been decided that no more troops shall be sent to the Plate.

The Paris correspondent of the London Herald mentions a rumor that a treaty has been concluded between France and Russia, the terms of which are adverse to the interests of England. It is reported that the Cardinals wish to place the Pope under the protection of a mixed garrison of Austrians and Italians.—Gen. De Hilliers insists upon leaving a French force of 10000 men in the city of Rome.

AUSTRIA.

The Breslau Gazette of the 6th says the public mind in Vienna is much taken up with a report of a coup d'etat, reports which are even current in military circles. The day named for putting it into effect is the 6th or 7th inst. The military measures are really formidable within a circle of 3 miles of Vienna. Houses are full of soldiers; there are at least 50,000 men in Vienna, and 50,000 could be poured in by Railway in three or four days.

The report that an alliance offensive and defensive has been concluded between Prussia, France and England, was circulated at Berlin.

The Typhus fever raged fearfully at Vienna, on the 20th ult. No less than thirty medical men had been seized with it from visiting their patients.

TURKEY.

Accounts are contradictory. On the one hand it is said that the Emperor of Russia has agreed to leave unmolested the Polish Refugees who were inhabitants of the Ottoman Territory before the Hungarian insurrection and that the Porte has agreed to the expulsion of those who took part in that insurrection.—Other accounts say that the Emperor has refused to accept the Sultan's guarantee for the conduct of the Poles and that the matter is as far from being settled as ever.

Scraps from the Knickerbocker.

In the "Bunkum Flagstaff and Independent Echo" are these advertisements. "Mr. Incog" beats "Mr Pilk" all hollow:

"If the person who took my umberell at Mrs. Ponsonby's party, he having failed to take my poetic hint, does not return it immediately, he will be exposed as he is known.

WILLIAM PILK.

Bunkum."

"The taker of Mr. Pilk's umberell (Umberell! ha! ha!) presents his compliments to Mr. Pilk, and is not afraid of being "exposed as he is known." He is not known. It was taken in a crowd, put away immediately after the party, and has not been used since. Mr. Pilk may therefore consider this assertion "a lie nailed to the counter." It is a pity that a man who can write such good verse as Mr. Pilk should deal in untruths; but it is a consolation to the gentleman who took the "umberell" (ha! ha!) and who was very much in need of it, (ha! ha!) that there are liars in the world as well as thieves!

INCOG."

On the Editor's table is the following queer knowledge of human nature:

"There was a good deal of satire in a reply we lately heard given to a question asked by a friend sitting at the dinner table on a steamboat of the second class: "What have you told the waiter to bring you? "I told him to bring me some hash" and afterwards some bread pudding. I always ask for hash on board a boat like this, because I know exactly what I get!" Not unlike the retired London dairyman, who remarked confidentially to a friend that it was not chalk that they put in the milk. He said it was something else.

Then again, on the same page, we find an anecdote, the gist of which is about as good as many of the arguments one hears from grown up children:

"I have," writes a correspondent, "a pretty, bright little juvenile friend, some five years of age, named Rosa. Some days ago she was treated a good deal by a gentleman who visits the family, who finally wound up by saying—Rosa, I don't love you." "Ah, but you've got to love me," said the child. "Why so?" asked her tormentor. "Why," said Rosa, the Bible says you must love them that hate you,' and I am sure I hate you!' Was that bad, "for a child?"

The subjoined is 'important if true:"—

"Have you," said an "inquiring-minded" and slightly worldly gentleman recently, to an "evangelical bookseller" in Broadway, "have you Christ's Sermon on the Mount?" "Christ's Sermon on the Mount!" exclaimed the bookseller; with not a little surprise. "Yes," said the other, "it was mentioned yesterday in a very charming discourse at our church, as an admirable thing; but perhaps it isn't out yet?" The anxious inquirer was not corrected, but was permitted to go his way—"for he had great possessions."

Evil communications corrupt good manners.—Punch says that is the reason why editors are so apt to have their manners spoiled, they receive from one correspondent and another such a vastnumber of "evil communications!"

BY THE LAST MAIL.

Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan 23.

In the Senate, Mr. Clay presented a memorial in favor of printing Washington's Farewell Address for dissemination—referred. The Vermont resolution was then taken up. Mr Phelps in a speech of some length, said he would first let Congress decide, constitutionally, the Wilmot proviso, and if the South was not satisfied, then let the Supreme Court decide, and the South would abide the decision. Mr. Yulee said the South would agree. Mr. Butler, in behalf of the South objected. Mr. Phelps said the only alternative was for the South to withdraw, when the national property, including the territories would remain with the supporters of the Union. If this was not acceptable and an appeal to arms was considered necessary, it remained with the North to be prepared. The Senate then went in to executive session, and adjourned.

In the House, Mr. Strong, from the committee on elections, reported that testimony be taken before the State Authorities concerning the contested election Iowa. A debate ensued.

The difficulties in Georgetown College have all been admirably settled, and the students have returned.

G H Dechtol has been recognized as Consul General for the States of Brunswick and Lunenburg.

MONTREAL, Wednesday, 23—QUEBEC ELECTION.—At the nomination meeting, a majority of votes was cast for Mr Legare. The Annexationists'a' polling takes place on Saturday.

TORONTO.—The Annexationists have formed here an association, comprising many respectable merchants, and intend shortly to issue their manifesto.

☞ On Tuesday night the train from Boston was delayed by snow and ice on the track, so that, though two engines were on, it was about one o'clock when they reached Kennebunk.—Half a mile or more east of that station, the foremost engine was thrown from the track, but lay so near it, that the train could not pass.—The cars were run back to the depot. The passengers spent the night in the cars and arrived in Portland the next afternoon.

The National Intelligencer of Tuesday, (22d) contains ten and a half close columns of Mr Cass's speech on the right of Congress to legislate for the Territories.

☞ The House has completed its organization—that is, unless some new question should arise as to the validity of the construction by which the doorkeeper and postmaster are permitted to hold over.

REFUGEES IN TURKEY—A letter in the Baltimore Sun, dated Constantinople, Dec. 5, says, that the dispute between Turkey, Austria, and Russia, has been settled thus: All refugees, Polish or Hungarians, now in Turkey, who have, or can obtain passports, are to be allowed free exit from the country; and what remain, are to be removed to the interior of the country for one year.

THE RIVER ST. LAWRENCE.—The Buffalo Commercial Advertiser publishes a correspondence, from which it appears that no American vessels shall are private property, are to be allowed to pass from the Lakes to the Atlantic, by the St. Lawrence. Mr, Hollister, of Buffalo, wished to send some vessels through, but Mr. Clayton declined to solicit the favor of a permit. He recommended him to apply to the American Minister at London, to request it unofficially from the British Government.

To Mill Owners.

GENIUS has long been at work to invent some way to save the vast amount of labor and files which it requires to keep gang and single Mill Saws in order. Such a Machine has been invented by D. Clark, of Lowell, Mass, for which he has received a Patent. It has given perfect satisfaction to all who have used it. A sample may be seen at the City Mills, North Bangor, (so called) or at C. & R. HOLYOKE'S Store, Brewer.

It is recommended to all who wish to avail themselves of such a saving.

See the following certificates.

J. DYER, Agent for Maine.

Brewer, Jan. 19, 1850

LOWELL, May 23, 1849.

To whom it may concern.—This certifies that I have used in my Mill during the two past years, one of Clirke's Patent Filing Machines, during which time I have realized a saving of labor of from thirty to fifty per cent, besides the saving made in using files which has been equal to that of labor, and from my experience in using said Machine, I can cheerfully recommend it, as in my opinion worthy of the patronage of Mill owners generally.

WM. FISKE.

BANGOR, June 1st, 1849.

To whom it may concern.—This certifies that I used, last season, two, and have now in operation at the City Mills (so called) at North Bangor, three of "Clark's Patent Filing Machines," and believe them to be a saving in labor and files, and from my experience, cheerfully recommend them as worthy of the patronage of Mill owners generally

JOHN FISKE.

Having used during the past year, one of "Clark's Paten Filing Machines," I fully concur in the above statement. RUFUS DWINEL.

PERFECT HEALTH,

A LIFE SAVED.

Most Wonderful Cure of a man 80 years of Age.

In the month of November, 18-, I was attacked with inflammation in my great toe, which soon broke out into a raging sore Mortification ensued and the first joint of my toe came off At his time I was under the care of the best physician in the country — everything I could put on or take in, but without any help The pain was so great I could not even change my shoes, the disease ran up my leg to my thigh, and had become so bad that my physician despaired of ever being able to cure me, and after six months confinement to my bed, finally told me I must prepare to die — but as my son the above writer was in my leg would not amputate I gave up in despair. One of my friends brought from Boston a bottle of HUNT'S LINIMENT, which he said would help my pain I applied it and the effect was wonderful, it seemed as if new life was put in me. In going one bottle the whole appearance of my leg changed to its natural color, the pain left me, and two or three bottles entirely cured me, to the astonishment of myself and the whole neighborhood Hunt's Liniment saved my life I am 80 years of age, and make this public that every human being may know the value of this great medicine

RHEUMATISM,

This is only one of more than four thousand cases of Rheumatism that Dr Townsend's Sarsaparilla has cured The most severe and chronic cases are well treated and speedily cured by its surprising virtues

James Cummings, Esq, one of the assistants in the Lunatic Asylum Blackwell's Island, is the gentleman spoken of in the following letter

Blackwell's Island, Sept 14, 1847

D Townsend — Dear Sir I have suffered terribly for nine years with the Rheumatism, considerable of the time I could not eat, sleep or walk I had the use of no disease pains, and my limbs were terribly swollen I have used four bottles of your Sarsaparilla, and they have done me more than one thousand dollars worth of good. I am so much better — indeed, I am only relieved You are at liberty to use this for the benefit of the afflicted Yours respectfully,

JAMES CUMMINGS

FITS! FITS! FITS!

Dr. Townsend not having tried his Sarsaparilla in cases of Fits, of course never recommended it, and was surprised to receive the following from an intelligent and respectable Farmer in Westchester County

Fordham, August 13, 1847

Dr Townsend — Dear Sir I have a little girl seven years of age, who has been several years afflicted with Fits; we tried almost every thing for her, but without success, at last, although we could find no recommendation in your favor we thought we would try some of your Sarsaparilla, and are very glad we did, for it has not only checked her strength, but she has had no return of the Fits, to our great pleasure and surprise. She is fast becoming rugged and hearty, for which we feel grateful. Yours, respectfully,

JOHN BUTLER Jr.

FEMALE MEDICINE

Dr. Townsend's Sarsaparilla is a sovereign and speedy cure for Incipient Consumption, Barrenness, Prolapsus Uteri or falling of the Womb, Leucorrhea or Whites, obstructed or difficult Menstruation Incontinence of Urine or involuntary discharge thereof, and for the general prostration of the system — the result of other diseases and pain, and from causes or causes, produced by irregularity, illness, or accident Nothing can be more surprising than its invigorating effects on the human frame Persons all weakness and lassitude, from taking a dose, become cool and full of energy under its influence It immediately eradicates the unfavorable effects of indulgence such as the great cause of Barrenness — It will not be a specific in any case of deficiency in nature, to enclose certificates of cures performed, but we of course feel diffident, that hundreds of cases have to be reported to us Thousands of cases where family have been without children, after trying a few bottle of this invaluable medicine, have been blessed with the blessing of offspring.

TO MOTHERS AND MARRIED LADIES.

Dr Townsend's Sarsaparilla is a specific prepared expressly for the relief of females. No family should be without it. It purifies the whole system, renews and invigorates the constitution at this time of life. This power will keep the delicate female in health for years by using this medicine Nor is it less valuable for those who are approaching womanhood as it is calculated to assist nature by quickening the blood and imparting the vital energy, which it does in a manner that no other medicine can do which females can take
